

As a participant in Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections, I urge the FCC avoid any proposal lessening or negating the Indiana Telephone Privacy law. Indiana's law has improved my limited evening hours by reducing the number of calls per week by nearly 25. My answering machine would be full of messages as well. I would use caller id to filter and to screen these phone calls if any change to Indiana's law is made. I am not interested in purchasing any goods or services over the telephone; therefore, I prefer a stringent law such as Indiana's.

Sincerely,
Cherilyn B. Anderson
